The GENERAL section on the bottom of page (5) should read:

GENERAL

Total labour income for 1966 is estimated at $1.9 billion as compared with $1.7 billion in 1965. Retail sales rose from $1,776 million to $1,924 million. Electric Power generation exceeded 6 billion KWH for the first time.

Canada, in spite of inflation, in spite of dislocating and damaging strikes, and in spite of federal governmental uncertainty as to how or whether to control the boom, had a very prosperous year.

The Alberta boom continued unchecked. Grain production was at a record high; livestock prices were high and firm; farm cash income rose accordingly. Mineral production was 9% higher than in 1965. Manufacturing output was higher in real terms; over 7% in value. Construction at least matched the previous 1965 record. Labour income was 13% higher and unemployment was negligible for most of the year. As might be expected from the higher total labour income, and the higher wage and salary rates retail trade also rose by close to 9%.

Despite the 1966 records, a note of uncertainty pervades the outlook for 1967. Prosperity in 1966 was accompanied by strong inflationary pressures and pronounced price increases. The natural reaction was tough bargaining by labour and professional groups who set a pattern of wage increases in key industries and occupations which inevitably will be matched across the board through 1967 and 1968. Until a new and stable wage plateau is reached further price increases are inevitable as the additional labour costs are passed on to consumers. It should be noted that a good proportion of the price and inflationary pressures were generated in other countries (particularly in the U.S.A.) and are the price Canada pays for maintaining such a high level of imports. The currency revaluation of 1962, although it results in increasing Canadian exports substantially, also results in a correspondingly higher cost of goods or services imported. Maintenance of the volume of Canadian exports will depend on whether the Canadian inflation and price increases exceeds or parallels inflation in other countries, (particularly the U.S.A.)

Added to the uncertainty engendered by inflation and price increases in Canada, is the uncertainty as to the course of the Viet Nam war. A pro-

Maintenance of the volume of Canadian exports will depend on whether the Canadian inflation and price increases exceeds or parallels inflation in other countries, (particularly the U.S.A.)

Added to the uncertainty engendered by inflation and price increases in Canada, is the uncertainty as to the course of the Viet Nam war. A protracted or escalating war will maintain or increase the pressure on Canadian productive resources and will result in firm prices for exports. A cessation or down - scaling of hostilities will result in slackening demand and more of a buyers market. There would be every reason to expect a re-adjustment period similar to that following the conclusion of the Korean war.

Thirdly, the construction industry is also going through a period of uncertainty. Although the rising marriage rate betokens a cumulating housing demand, housing construction has been steadily dropping due to tight money and other governmental pressures. Since the fortunes of the construction industry affect both labour markets and materials markets so very rapidly, and since there is as yet no indication of policies to stabilize or restimulate the necessary flow of mortgage funds there is bound to be some question as to the outlook for the months ahead.

Despite the various over-riding and pervasive national uncertainties, the 1967 business outlook for Alberta is generally favourable. Grain crop production cannot be forecast -- but grain prices should remain firm. More than half of farm cash income is received, in any case, from sale of livestock products and livestock output is relatively unaffected by favourable or unfavourable crop conditions. Mineral production should continue to rise, and at firm prices. Only a very pronounced national or continental recession should affect noticeably the manufacturing output of the province. The outlook for the construction industry (particularly residential) is more uncertain, but the construction carryover from 1966 is at least as substantial as in any previous year, indicating a continued immediate pressure on resources. There is no doubt as to the pressure of the demand for residential construction; in doubt, only, is the availability of finances.

AGRICULTURE

Farmers cash income was higher in 1966 than in any recent year.

MINERALS

According to Dominion Bureau of Statistics estimates, the value of minerals produced rose by over 9% from $794 million in 1965 to over $871 million in 1966. At the current growth rate in production, Alberta should soon surpass Ontario as the major mining province of Canada.

MANUFACTURING

The value of manufacturers' shipments rose by nearly $100 million during 1966 to $1,364 million. Major increases were shown by the Foods and Beverages industry (particularly the meat packing plants); by the Metal Fabricating industry; by Non-metallic Mineral products industry; and by the Chemical Production industry. The cut back in residential construction is reflected in lower sawmill production; and the fact that 1966 was an off year for pipelining reflects in lower shipments from the Primary Metal industry group.
